

Shirley Pile by Sophie Bacon

age: 65

residence: Chevy Chase, MD

education: graduated college with a degree in library studies occupation: Librarian and Grandma marital status: Married with children and grandchildren

Let's go find a nice book together!

Shirley wakes up early everyday and has coffee, donuts, and bacon on her back patio with her husband. She then gets ready to walk to the local library, where she is in charge of the children's section. Shirley spends her day at the library and then picks up her daughter's children from preschool and takes them back to her house. She plays with her grandchildren until her daughter picks them up. Her husband comes home and makes them dinner. They then watch a show and read before bed.

Bryan Stevenson by Jaden Arnold

age: 28

residence: Knoxville, Tennessee education: Bachelor's in Music Education occupation: Highschool Band Director

marital status: Married with 2 kids

"To achieve great things, two things are needed; a plan, and not quite enough time." -Leonard Bernstein

Gets up nice and early before everyone in order to plan out his day. Spends so long planning his day that he's always late, messing up the rest of the day's schedule. Shows up just early enough to beat the students to class but is one of the last teachers to get to work. The first period of the day is always super unorganized but after that, the day runs like clockwork. During lunch, he eats in his office and reads by himself. At the end of the day, he has his last class help tidy up the band room so he can get over to the elementary school to pick up his kids.

When he gets home, he either cooks dinner or calls his wife who's still at the office to ask her about her day and if she can pick something up on her way home. Finally, he kicks back and watching NCIS or football before bed.
